Wild Shiner Party Features Presidential Candidate

February 9 at LW Airport

Yahvoul, El Presidente for Life and Exalted Ruler of the Wild Shiners Limited Liability Partnership and Mardi Gras Krewe, has apparently announced the creation of an Exploratory Committee to investigate the feasibility of running for President. The announcement was made on YouTube in a totally blacked-out video clip, which appeared to be the result of the lens cap being left on.

In the announcement, Yahvoul said that since he already had decades of experience as El Presidente of the Wild Shiners, that he might as well throw his hat in the ring along with everybody else and his brother. The Exalted Ruler described his political persuasion to be somewhere between Hillary Clinton and Hugo Chavez, both of whom he believes he can beat. He claimed to have the endorsement of numerous celebrities, including Mel Gibson, Wynona Ryder, and John Belushi.

The announcement appeared to be a thinly veiled ploy to bring attention to the upcoming Wild Shiner Ball, an annual affair graced by a horde of otherwise normal people strangely drawn to the glow of Black Lights. The event which features non-stop Rock & Roll, is a big hit with people from nearly all walks of life. Even Yavoul admitted that might be a slight exaggeration. But he insisted that the actually fairly narrow demographic indeed has a darned good time, enough in fact to make up for all those more timid types who have never mustered the courage to stick their noses under the tent.

Yahvoul went on to explain that if he did indeed decide to move forward with a bid for the Presidency, he would contract Jack Abramoff to be his campaign manager. "Even if he would have to work from a prison cell, that Jack knows how to raise money!" Yahvoul snorted on the YouTube clip. He also intends to get the two bands that are playing at the ball, Jr. & the MDs and Joe Willy Neckbone and the Fish Heads, to hit the campaign trail with him to attract crowds at Wal-Mart parking lots across the country.

One YouTube pundit speculated in a separate video as to whether Yahvoul might officially announce his run for office at the Ball, which, by the way, is being held this year at the Lake Wales Airport at 8:00 PM on Friday night, February 9. One notable advantage to holding the ball at the airport is that partiers have numerous options for transportation to the ball, including personal jet and skydiving. Yahvoul left a message on Paris Hilton's answer machine to see if she would like to jet in as his special guest and perhaps even be crowned Queen Shinola. If Paris doesn't get back with him, he'll try Rosie O'Donnell. Yahvoul postulated that she'd probably be more fun.

Ten dollars a head; $25 a couple. Bring your own cooler. This year to celebrate all the above, Yahvoul has arranged for direct descendants of Al "Scarface" Capone to provide authentic Italian/Cicilian cuisine to be available for revelers. Mama Ricci's Deli will have an impressive assortment of belly-warming grub. Arrive hungry or get hungry working out on the dance floor, your choice, but don't miss out on Mama's famous chop chop. The Wild Shiner Black Light Ball – it sounds to good to be true, sort a like a Presidential Candidate. A vote for Yahvoul is, well, come to the Shiner Ball and you'll see....
